Financial Literacy for Millennials: A Practical Discussion to Managing Your Financial Life

Thoughtful Financial planning weaved with financial discipline are essential building blocks of adulthood for any Millennial. Millennials are unique in multiple ways. They are better educated than their predecessors, more ethnically diverse, and more economically active. Yet, during economic uncertainty and debt, they face huge difficulties. As a generation, Millennials are more conscious of being on a path leading to financial security. However, they are striving on how to start since the world economy and working style has changed over generations.

Financial Literacy for Millennials offers helpful insights into the lives of successful Millennials at different phases of their life and career paths. It will be a complete toolbox of ideas, tips, and lessons that will help young adults build their own lives in broader prosperity. We believe in gaining from healthy deep meaningful discussions minus the boring gyaan.

Our young adults require many skills to succeed in the current scenario and most important among them will be understanding how to handle their money, no matter what career path they follow. This conference will share information on all facets of financial decision making. The event will bring together 100 thoughtful minds and five powerful Millennials who will share their journey of Financial Literacy.
